RE: Computer Science Week

During the week of December 8 through 14th, schools across New Jersey are celebrating Computer Science Education Week. We are proud of our educators that are leading their school’s efforts to bring computer science education to New Jersey’s students throughout all grade levels.

In New Jersey, students participate in computer science education both through formal coursework and also in numerous co-curricular activities. For instance, more than 100 of New Jersey’s high schools currently offer a computer science course sequence that includes AP Computer Science.

This week, we celebrate efforts – large and small – to bring computer science to our schools. For more information or suggestions on how to get started, please visit: http://csedweek.org/
